General Gomes Poorly Ridden.

General J. M. Gomez was asked to concede lumps of weight to his opposition, and while he falled to finish in the money he showed a splendid performance. Morrissey tiptoed his coltright from the start, never gave him a breathing spell and hustled him into a three length lead rounding the turn into the backstretch. The colt tired under these tactics in the stretch run and was beaten by a nose and a head for second, money. Sea Prince was third. The Goldblatt pair, Matinee Idol and AMB Boy IL, brought up the rear. The net value to the winner was $2.890.

Th fourth race, a dash of five furnings, brought together the best lot of sprinters that have gone to the post during the meeting. The Goldblatt stable furnished the favorites in Guvernor and Ararat, which ran as an entry, but neither finished among the placed horses. The winner turned up in Last One, which made all his own pace and won in easy fashion by a length and a half from Alken. The pace was fast from the start, the fractional time being 23-35 seconds, 46-25 seconds and 59-25 seconds. The track record is 59 seconds fiat.

Silence may be golden, but we'll admit that the Native Sons have something to back up their flow of silver conversation. As we pull the coat collar closer and shove cold, numbed fingers into the warmth of pockets we reflect that a climate where football, baseball and the crash of the niblick start the perspiration in January has something to be said for it.

something to be said for it.

Well, there is no danger of its not being said. The first word that a California baby learns to lisp is "climate," and after he dies that is the first thing of which he complains—no matter where he goes.

A YEAR FOR STADIUMS.

This should be a banner year for the starting of stadiums, to say nothing of those which will be completed before 1923 appears. Columbia is to build an athletic field which will cost millions. Illinois and Northwestern are contemplating the erection of huge football inclosures. Princeton will have its ice rink in shape by next month.

LOST BALL RULE CHANGE IS URGED

English Golfers Also Excited

Over Stroke and Distance

Penalty.

Word comes from England that St Andrews once more has tackled the question of standardizing the golf ball and that this topic shares the leading and that this topic shares the leading place in off season discussions with the proposition to amend the rule which calls for a penalty of both stroke and distance for a lost ball. There is a strong movement in this country toward a rule which would penalize a golfer only a stroke for a lost ball, but the prevailing sentiment on the other side opposes this change.

Max Behr some time ago wrote to the London Field on that topic, and it discusses his communication in this way:

"Mr. Behr is now writing as a special pleader. He, in common with many of his fellow countrymen, holds that the penalty of stroke and distance is too heavy for the offense committed by the player who has placed his ball in a position where, for one reason or another, it cannot be played. This penalty practically amounts to the loss of two strokes. Mr. Behr considers that the loss of one stroke is sufficient punishment for an error which renders the ball unplayable.

"This loss can be evacted either by ment for an error which renders the ball unplayable.

"This loss can be exacted either by ordaining that the player shall play another ball as nearly as possible from the place whence he played his first or by allowing him to drop another ball as nearly as possible to the place where the first has, or is presumed to have, come to rest. We hold strongly the contrary opinion and plump for stroke and distance, Golf is a game of risks; and on the golf courses of this imperfect world the risks are of two kinds. The player is at one moment faced with the necessity of circumventing hazards from which, if he plays his ball into them, he can recover it by his own skill and power.
